De Gaulle Gets Algeria Mandate Clashes Mark Voting In African Colony

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian program won the approval of 56.61 per cent of France's voters Sunday, short of the 65 per cent the president reportedly hoped for.

Although abstentions cut the "yes" vote below the endorsement De Gaulle sought, there was every indication the president would consider the outcome in the three-day referendum as a mandate to push ahead with his program.

De Gaulle has promised more self-government at once for the North African territory and its Moslem majority and a self-determination referendum when the 6-year-old nationalist rebellion is ended.

When counting in Algeria was halted for the night, 67.6 per cent of the votes cast were in favor of De Gaulle's program, but abstentions — the result of a boycott urged by both diehard French colonialists and the nationalist rebels — were running as high as 40 per cent in some of the territory's 13 departments. The vote went against De Gaulle in only one department—Oran, a hotbed of colonialism and rebel nationalism as well.

De Gaulle had said he would consider an abstention as a vote against him and hinted he would resign if he did not get a solid endorsement. But Premier Michel Debre in a midnight TV appearance claimed a great victory for the government and said exultantly, "What a feeling of rallying, unity and strength the nation has shown, rising above those who work to divide."

The Constitutional Council reported this vote in France: registered voters 26,847,953, ballots cast 20,809,029, yes 15,198,714 no 4,999,507 void ballots 613,808.

The yes vote in France thus was 75.25 per cent of the ballots cast while the abstentions were 22.5 per cent.

The polling was generally quiet in France. But in Algeria rebel attacks or clashes between troops and demonstrators resulted in 14 deaths, bringing the toll for the three days of voting there to 28 dead and scores of wounded.

Canton Tavern Ripped by Blast

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—An explosion literally blew a Canton tavern apart early today, and ensuing fire finished the job of demolishing the place. No one was injured.

Damage to the frame building housing Sylvester's Restaurant and Cocktail Lounge was estimated at $75,000 to $100,000. Fire Chief William Roshe estimated. He said cause of the blast was not determined.

Sylvester Premier, who operated the place, said he smelled gas fumes and had called a repair firm. The repair firm checked and said everything was all right, Premier reported.

The explosion blew out the rear of the building and the roof. The walls buckled. Heat from the fire was so intense it cracked windows across the street.

The building formerly was a six-room house but had been remodeled at a cost of $40,000. It was partially insured. Owner of the tavern is Mary Shaheen of Las Vegas.

Fire Damages Sofa At Youth Center

City firemen were called to the Memorial Building at 10:38 p.m. Saturday to extinguish a blaze in a plastic sofa that caught fire in the Youth Center. Damage was confined to the sofa.

Uses Guantanamo as Base

U. S. Atlantic Flotilla Maneuvers off Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—U. S. Atlantic fleet units headed toward Guantanamo Bay and the Caribbean today on annual maneuvers certain to draw strong criticism from Fidel Castro's propaganda outlets.

A flotilla of 150 naval units, including the $90-million 45,000-ton supercarrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, three guided missile cruisers and two nuclear submarines, will take part in the Caribbean exercise that starts today and runs until the end of March. A total of 140,000 officers and men will participate.

A Navy spokesman in Puerto Rico said the ships will go in and out of the U. S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, the last major foothold on Cuban territory, "in the normal run of things."

The Navy stressed that the maneuvers were planned long ago and have no connection with the U. S. break in diplomatic relations with Cuba. But the flotilla is bringing twice as many men and ships to the Caribbean as there were in last year's maneuvers.

And it carried enough fire power, missiles and war planes to give strong support to the Guantanamo base if needed.

The Navy spokesman attributed the increased number of ships and men to the fact that guided missile vessels are taking part for the first time.

The U. S. warships, from every major base on the Atlantic Coast, will be joined by Canadian, British and Dutch units. U. S. Marines will practice amphibious landings on Vieques Island, 20 miles east of Puerto Rico.

The U. S. fleet movements, labeled "provocative" by the Havana newspaper El Mundo, appeared to offer an excuse for the Castro regime to whip up the invasion hysteria now lagging after 10 days of warnings. The Navy show of strength was the only "enemy invasion" that Castro could point to despite his complaint to the U. N. Security Council that American forces were going to attack him.

Broad Peace Program Urged Kennedy Receives Recommendations

BOSTON (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy was urged today to assert strong leadership and seek more money for a program designed to promote world peace through American aid to foreign scholars.

Expansion and more vigorous direction of the existing program of educational and cultural assistance to such students was the second step recommended to Kennedy within 24 hours for improvement of international relations.

The other step would create an experimental peace corps of talented young Americans to serve two years overseas in helping new and underdeveloped countries build "the institutions essential to self confident and effective nationhood."

During the presidential campaign Kennedy proposed exemption from the military draft for some of the male members of such a corps. This was criticized by his Republican opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, as an invitation to draft dodging.

A Kennedy-appointed study committee Sunday night recommended establishment of the peace corps, or international youth service, but urged against any exemption from selective service. However, the committee called for draft deferments on the same basis as postponements granted to students taking graduate training in this country.

That study group was headed by Dr. Max Millikan, director of the Center for International Studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The other study on aid for foreign scholars, made public today, was made for the president-elect.

Integration At Georgia U. Is Delayed

Judge Grants Stay To Permit Appeal To Higher Court

ATLANTA (AP)—A federal judge who ordered two Negroes admitted to the all-white University of Georgia granted a stay today to permit an appeal to a higher court.

The action by Judge W. A. Bootle came as Miss Charlayne A. Hunter, 18, and Hamilton E. Holmes, 19, were at the university in Athens making final arrangements to enter the 175-year-old institution.

Will Delay Enrollment

The stay order will delay their enrollment with 7,400 white students until the opening of the spring quarter late in March.

It gives the segregation-minded Georgia Legislature, which opened a 40-day session today, a chance to strike out provisions of laws banning the use of state funds in operation of an integrated college.

The more than 250 legislators whooped and hollered for several minutes when word of Bootle's stay action reached the legislative halls.

"Judge Bootle's stay takes off the immediate pressure," said Frank S. Twitty, House floor leader. "It gives the legislature time to study and think, and act judiciously."

At Athens, 60 miles east of Atlanta, Miss Hunter and Holmes were in the process of being enrolled when Bootle's delay order came.

The quick action by Bootle brought a prompt announcement from Mrs. Constance Baker Motley of New York, counsel for the National Advancement of Colored People, that his action will be appealed to the 5th U. S. Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

Will Contest Decree

The state's appeal to this same appellate court will contest Bootle's desegregation decree. Bootle warned Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook that there should be no delay in the appeal and ordered the university to post a $5,000 good faith bond.

Bootle's decision today came less than two hours before Gov. Ernest Vandiver prepared to address the legislature and try to point a way out of the crisis and conflict in state and federal laws.

A cross was burned on the edge of the university campus early today in the presence of about 200 chanting, yelling students.

The Athens fire department extinguished the cross. Police were called but no arrests were reported.

An estimated 3,000 students signed petitions asking the university be kept open even if desegregated. The petitions are to be presented to the legislature.

Sixteen students signed a telegram to the governor expressing their "strong belief in the principle of segregation" and opposition to the entrance of the two Negro students.

Ike Addresses Opening Session

Conference on Aging Center of Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower opens the long-planned White House conference on aging today. Even before it started, the conference was a center of controversy.

The President arranged to address the opening session of the huge conference, which has drawn 2,500 delegates from all 50 states. Charges have been made—and denied—that the American Medical Association has attempted to stack the conference with delegates opposed to federal medical aid to the aged tied to the existing Social Security system. This is the approach backed by President-elect John F. Kennedy.

Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., kept the controversy boiling in a speech prepared for today's session, "I am concerned," he said, "that the AMA has publicly stated that it will devote all its resources to block any attempts by this conference to endorse medical insurance for the aged tied to Social Security."

McNamara has introduced a bill to carry out the Social Security plan for medical care.

McNamara said, "It is unfortunate that the AMA continues to devote such massive effort to promotion of its 19th century philosophy rather than concen-

Two Guards, Convict Injured

Police Quell Escape Attempt At Pennsylvania Penitentiary

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—State police with shotguns, advancing behind a barrage of tear gas, quickly quelled an attempted escape at the Eastern State Penitentiary Sunday night.

Two guards were stabbed with makeshift knives, neither seriously. A convict received a skull fracture.

Fourteen convicts engineered the attempted break, state troopers said. The 14 opened the cell doors of hundreds of other prisoners in the maximum security block, apparently in a move to create confusion, but only 18 others left their cells.

The 14 surrendered meekly in a prison garage, giving up nine hostages. One of the hostages had been wounded. Four of the convicts were in guard uniforms.

The disturbance started shortly before 8 p.m. Warden W.J. Banmiller said guard Donald Carr, 40, allowed one prisoner to enter another's cell to return a guitar.

Both jumped Carr, who was stabbed in the left shoulder. He dropped his keys and ran.

The two convicts then ran to the cell block door, unlocked it, overpowered guard Lt. William Righter, 59, and began unlocking all doors in the maximum security cellblocks. Righter suffered a superficial knife cut in the abdomen and was taken as hostage.

The first two convicts, picking up a dozen accomplices and other hostages along the way, then approached one of the main gate guards.

"They told me they were going to shoot the guards unless I reopened the door," said guard Tom McDonald. "I pointed a shotgun at them through the bars and they ran away."

The 14 went to the deputy warden's office, setting it afire, before moving to the prison garage, where they located a truck and prepared to scale the wall. They had a rope fashioned from mattress covers and a ladder from the garage.

At this time state police—who with city police had ringed the prison with a heavily armed cordon—moved inside the 40-foot high gray walls of the 131-year-old brownstone prison located just a few blocks from Philadelphia's City Hall.

Within 45 minutes the mopping up operation was over, the convicts stripped, searched and returned to their cells.

Injured in the car, owned by James P. Hook of Youngstown, was Jessie Mayers, 17, of Youngstown. Both Thompson and Mayers were taken to South Side Hospital where Thompson was pronounced dead on arrival.

Two other mishaps were caused by the Emch-James collision on Rt. 625 Saturday as Stanley E. Evans, 32, of Youngstown struck Emch's auto at 11:30 p.m. which was on the highway without light in the northbound lane.

Evans was cited by the Patrol for failure to stop in the assured clear distance.

The third accident at the scene of the fatal mishap on Rt. 625 involved Albert H. Eaton, 34, of 570 N. Howard Ave. who was attempting to flag down traffic. Eaton's auto was parked on the west side of the road when a vehicle operated by William P. Widdershiem of Youngstown spun around and struck the rear of Eaton's car at 11:27 p.m.

Plans and Problems - 1

Kennedy Aims to Boost U.S. Power, Avoid Early Summit

Editor's Note—Central to John F. Kennedy's election campaign was a promise to provide dynamic leadership for the United States in a complex world. How is this promise likely to be applied to U.S. foreign policy. In the first of a five-part series on the plans and problems of the new administration, a seasoned diplomatic reporter outlines the direction Kennedy is likely to take on major foreign issues facing the country as he prepares to take office.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Associated Press

Diplomatic Affairs Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy intends to build up United States military power and devise new strategy to wrest the cold war initiative from the Soviet Union, in his first months in office.

Until he has these projects well advanced, Kennedy and the secretary of state-designate, Dean Rusk, hope to postpone pressures for a summit conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Early summit meetings with allied leaders appear inescapable; both Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer anxiously desire to talk with the new chief executive.

Even a meeting with Khrushchev in the first six months may not be avoidable because the Soviet leader can set off a new Berlin crisis any time he wishes.

New action promised by Kennedy in the global struggle with communism ranges from increasing aid for Latin America, Africa and Asia to rebuilding the North Atlantic alliance, opening new channels of contact with Red China, and developing a "new approach" to the Soviet Union.

In connection with the Soviets, Kennedy said during the campaign that one thing Red leaders understand is power, and that his first concern as president would be to enhance America's armed strength in both nuclear and conventional weapons.

Kennedy's broad commitment on taking office Jan. 20 is to "get America moving again" and to restore its "prestige." He says determinations on how best to work toward these goals is the overriding task of the new administration.

That will require long-range planning, too. One of Kennedy's first decisions must be on the division of his time between the grand design of his foreign policy and the challenges and crises he must handle from day to day.

Problems Piling Up

Already, in fact, critical problems are piling up for speedy action.

Foremost among these are:

1. Negotiations with the Soviet Union on a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests. Kennedy is on record as favoring "one more" big attempt to reach agreement. But as president he will be subjected to very heavy pressures from the Atomic Energy Commission and Defense Department to end the 26-month-old moratorium on U.S. weapons testing and resume underground explosions quickly.

2. The dollar crisis. Kennedy is reported convinced that he must take steps promptly to strengthen the American dollar as an international currency, which means cutting this country's loss of gold and dollars. Measures taken by the Eisenhower administration should become effective this year, but other action will be required to control the $4-billion annual balance of payments deficit.

3. The crisis in Laos. State department experts consider the conflict between pro-Western and pro-Communist forces in the little Southeast Asian kingdom capable of expansion into a larger war involving Western forces and the Chinese Communists.

4. The Cuban crisis. Behind the scenes there is more official alarm than has appeared publicly about the danger and damage to the U.S. world position from the buildup of Communist influence in Cuba. President Eisenhower applied economic sanctions and severed diplomatic relations. Kennedy will be urged to use a variety of political and economic measures against the Castro regime.

5. The Berlin dispute. This was the immediate cause of the abortive 1960 summit at Paris, and could develop into a new crisis at any time. U.S. officials believe, however, that Khrushchev will stay his hand until Kennedy has an opportunity to take over the reins in Washington. Khrushchev evidently does want to meet the youthful new American leader, and undoubtedly knows that he would frustrate his own purpose if he mistimed his Berlin moves. However, it is also true that an extremely serious Berlin situation might force Kennedy to move toward a summit conference just as Eisenhower felt forced to do.

Kennedy Needs Time

Kennedy's chief concern about rushing into meetings with Western leaders is that he needs time to get his Cabinet and other top advisers organized, and to make an initial policy review. Apart from the Adenauer and Macmillan desires to meet him, it has been suggested that a NATO meeting at Oslo, Norway, in May should be converted into a Western summit session. Otherwise, it will be a foreign ministers meeting. Rusk also must get ready for U.S. representation in scheduled CENTO (Middle East) SEATO (Southeast Asia) and inter-American alliance meetings within the first six months of this year.

How Kennedy handles each of these meetings and deals initially with each of the critical problems will have a decisive influence on the world's reaction to his leadership ability. One of the most striking facts about world reaction to Kennedy's election has been the evidence in editorial comment in foreign capitals that his promise to provide dynamic leadership for the United States and the Free World has been widely accepted. Now, the leaders and the peoples in scores of countries are waiting for him to show what he can do.

LAUGHTER TURNED TO TEARS — Reports from Australia are that new settlers are shooting the friendly kookaburra, above, also known as the laughing jackass. Kookaburras inhabit open country in the Blue Mountains. The sociable birds' extraordinary laughing note, perhaps the most familiar sound in the Australian bush, is the source of their nickname. Strict conservation laws are designed to protect the bird which is a popular pet among frontier families.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. H. T. HYMAN

Seek Cause of Convulsions

The appearance of a convulsion, at birth, is always a cause for grave concern. And justifiably so, since infantile convulsions are almost always manifestations of severe damage to the brain itself.

By the time the child is two years old, the first appearance of a convulsion is a cause for very much less concern. For, at this stage in the young child's development, the convulsive episode is almost always the response of a normal, but highly sensitive, nervous system to fever or to a disturbance in body chemistry.

The fever is almost always caused by an infecting organism that can be liquidated by treatment with an antibiotic. The chemical disturbance is almost always due to a deficiency of sugar or calcium that can easily be overcome by feeding or injecting the appropriate substance. So therefore the convulsive episode has no more influence on the child's future development than an electric storm that terrifies momentarily and then passes.

BUT IF YOU are the parent of a convulsing child, you'll probably want more reassurances than are given in the bare outline you've just read.

You'd want to know how sure your doctor could be that the convulsion, attributed to the fever or the chemical disturbance, wasn't a manifestation also of an underlying epilepsy. And you'd want to know why, if this possibility existed, it wouldn't be better to prescribe antiepileptic drugs to spare your child the harrowing experience of another convulsive episode.

Here's how you can protect your child and yourselves with the thoughtful co-operation and assistance of your doctor:

REQUEST A tracing of the brain

waves (electro-encephalogram) to determine definitely whether or not your child is epileptic. The tracing (EEG) is readily obtained without the slightest discomfort or risk to the child.

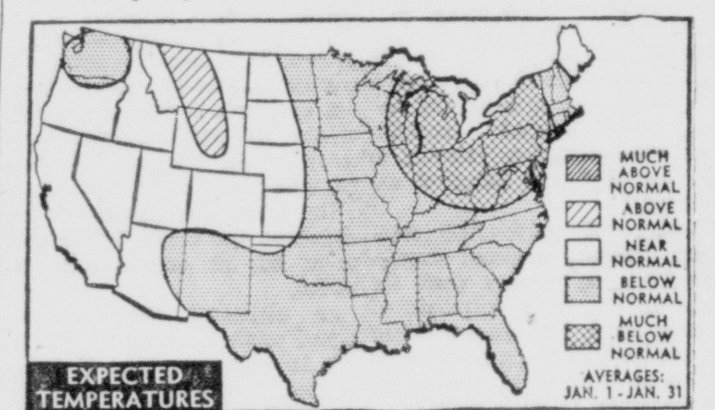

If the tracing is normal, you may breathe freely though you must bear in mind the possibility that the child, up to the age of five, may still have a convulsive episode at some later time if he suffers a fresh infection.

If the tracing indicates that your child is epileptic, you may take comfort in the experiences of Dr. Samuel Livingston, director of the Epilepsy Clinic at the Johns Hopkins Hospital. After 24 years of study, Dr. Livingston recommends regular daily doses of anticonvulsive drugs for the child with proven epilepsy. At the end of four years of treatment in the case of a boy, and slightly longer in the case of the girl who is about to mature, treatment is gradually withdrawn and then wholly discontinued if all is well as it is with the very rare exception.

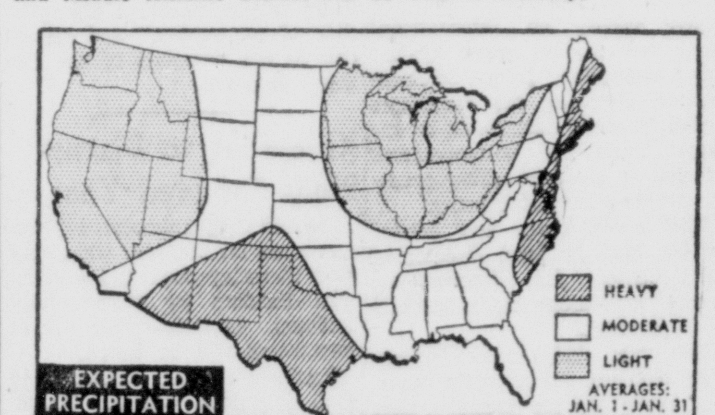

IN THIS WAY, as you see, your child will not be unnecessarily treated if there is no reason to administer anticonvulsive drugs; he or she will be given almost certain protection against another seizure if drug treatment is required, and you may rest secure in the belief that your child is safe from harm.

Eastern half of the nation—especially Great Lakes, Ohio Valley and Middle Atlantic States—will be cold in January.

Weather Bureau says precipitation will exceed normal over the Southwest and Atlantic Coast, lesser amounts elsewhere.

Careful Frame Building Puts Handyman In The Picture

It's not hard to make your own picture frames. Frame molding is stocked by many art shops and department stores.

You can cut expenses further by purchasing stock molding strips from a lumber yard. Picture molding will require less work because it has a quarter-inch rabbet on the back.

Rabbeting
If you buy stock molding you will have to cut a rabbet—a small recess 1/4 inch deep and about 3/8 inch wide—along the inner edge. This allows the picture and glass and any backing material to set flush with the back of the frame.

If you own a router or a power saw, cutting the rabbet is a simple matter. If you are limited to hand tools, add a rabbeting plane to your collection. Though it may take a little longer by hand you can still do a good job.

If the molding strip isn't thick enough on the inner edge for this groove, then make an artificial rabbet. Glue a piece of wood 1/4 inch thick to the inner side of the molding. Offset it enough to provide the rabbet you want. You also can allow this strip to stick out on the outside, making your frame wider.

Cutting Corners
Frame corners should be mitered (a butt joint with the end of each piece cut to a 45-degree angle.) Power saws can be set for the correct angle. If you are using hand tools, use a miter box. Make certain your saw is sharp. Cutting is done after rabbeting.

When you've cut the pieces, take the opposite sides of the frame and match them up back to back to make certain the lengths are absolutely the same.

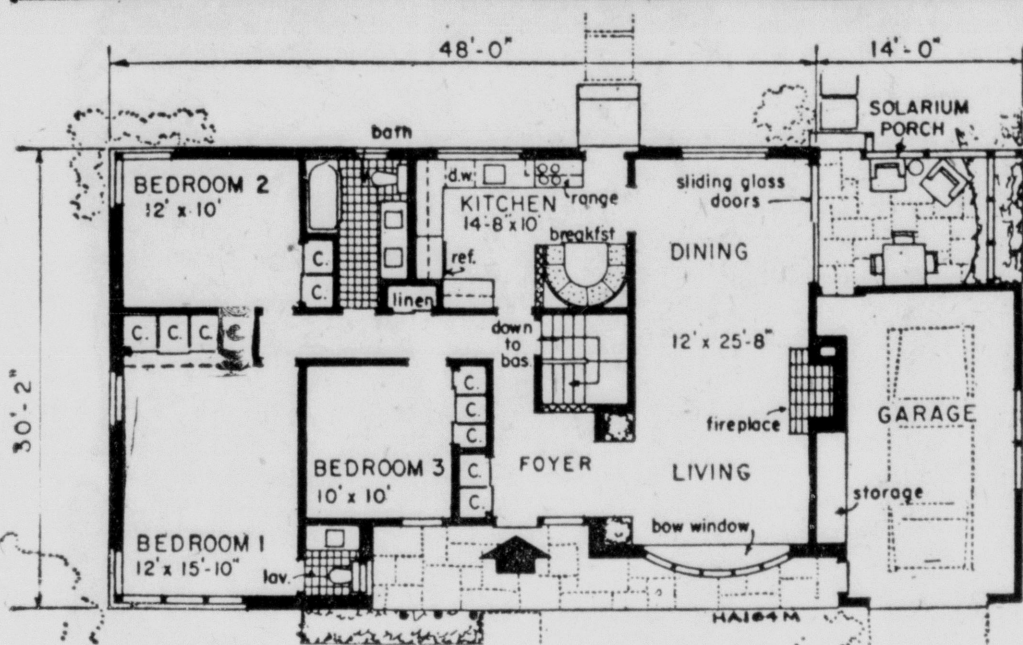

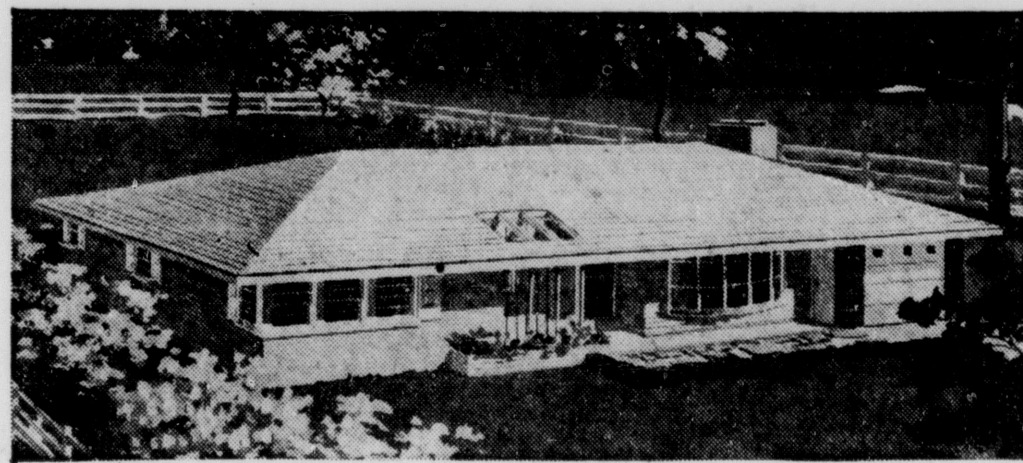

Joining
Join the corners with brads and glue. Drilling a hole slightly smaller than the brad will prevent the wood from splitting. Regular miter vises are available but are costly.

To hold the frame while the glue dries you can make a simple jig of scrap lumber. To a board larger than the frame nail a few thin scraps of wood to encompass an area just slightly larger than the frame. Place the assembled frame in this jig and tighten it by forcing small wedges between the frame and the jig.

If the molding is thin you may have to rely on glue alone. If thick, you may be able to reinforce the corners with wood dowels. Brads can serve as neat pins by clipping off the heads before inserting them.

Finishing
Be sure to wipe away excess glue before it dries or it will interfere with the finish.

When the frame is assembled give it a careful sanding. If you wish a white or colored frame use flat wall paint. For a natural finish, thin coats of shellac rubbed down after applying is good. Or simply sand and wax. Whatever finish your imagination devises, keep it simple.

A FEELING OF SPACE—An impression of spacious living is accomplished in this modest-sized rancher by combining living and dining rooms in one large area. Additional spaciousness is created by large sliding glass doors in the dining area which open onto a porch solarium. Living space is 1,329 square feet. The architect is Rudolph A. Matern, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 32, N. Y., and the plan is No. HA164M.

Now's the Time to Resolve To Make Needed Repairs

It's time for a set of house rules, those inevitable resolutions that start out with great promise at the beginning of the year.

List those odd jobs you've been procrastinating about, and put your determination to work. If you can't do them yourself, get some help. If repairs are done early, it will be easier on the house and your budget. Time has a way of encouraging depletion.

Take an inventory of needed repairs.

A FEW SHINGLES HAVE blown off the roof? Fix them now before you have major repairs such as ceiling leaks, flashings and other roof renewals.

A couple of pipes are leaking in the cellar, but not bad. You'd better replace the pipes if they can't be repaired or risk a real pipe break, and major flooding. If it happens during a community emergency you'll find plumbers scarce.

You use extension cords over the house, hoping to replace them with outlets at some future date? There's no time like the present. Improper wiring is a major cause of home fires in the United States.

IS YOUR CHIMNEY clean? If you've postponed this chore for more than a couple of seasons, you'd better call the chimney men. A common cause of chimney fires is dirty chimney flues. If you cook over the fireplace, the danger is increased. Grease can cause a major fire particularly when a flue is dirty.

Are there air leaks under doors or around window frames? Weather stripping or puttying and an hour's work may cut down your heat bill.

STAIR CASES SHAKY? Loose treads, railings or posts on stairs, particularly on cellar steps are small jobs for local handymen, but can cause great mishaps if neglected. Older people particularly are victims of stairway accidents.

What about those small annoyances that the man of the house keeps postponing? Simple repairs can be made by the lady of the house.

If it's the drip of the faucet, change the washer. Close the valve which controls water into the faucet. Unscrew the nut just under the faucet with a wrench, holding the faucet as you do so. When the faucet handle is removed, you'll see the worn washer. Remove the screw above it. The washer may need to be dug out. Replace washer, put faucet handle back in place, release water valve.

THE LADY OF THE HOUSE should understand fuse problems in the event something goes haywire when the man of the house is away. It's wise to learn the fuses your circuits require, where the fuse box is located, and how to change the fuse, before an emergency arises. Fuse changing isn't dangerous, providing you follow directions. An old fuse may be removed and a new one replaced in a jiffy, once you get the hang of it.

House 'Settling' Doesn't Mean It's Cracking Up

"Settling" of a new home is a natural phenomenon in the first year or so after a house is built as beams, studs, and other structural members seat and adjust themselves to weight and atmospheric conditions.

Rarely does this settling result in serious damage beyond tiny cracks that may appear in plaster or around doors and windows.

This is because builders and architects allow for settling with special construction techniques and building materials that adapt themselves to change.

A good example is the roofing material used by more builders than any other—asphalt shingles. These are tough and may give a quarter of a century or more of protection, yet are pliable. Unlike brittle roofing materials that may crack under settling or extreme temperature changes, asphalt shingles adapt to these changes, continuing to provide an unbroken shield of protection.

Here's The Answer

QUESTION: We are having a house built on a concrete slab. Some time ago we decided to have cork tile put down on the living room floor. The contractor agreed and said nothing about cork tile being unsuitable for installation on concrete. Now, a friend of ours tells us that he is sure cork tile should not be placed over concrete. He says the alkali in the concrete eventually will affect the cork. Is he right?

ANSWER: Your friend has the right idea, but apparently is unaware that cork tile can be placed on concrete under certain conditions. First, the surface of the concrete must be at least one foot above grade. And secondly, there must be a drainage slope away from the floor. Sometimes these conditions prevail, sometimes they do not. Since your contractor said he would make the tile installation, it is to be assumed that the concrete slab of your house will be laid properly. However, there is always the possibility of a slipup, so it would be advisable for you to check with the contractor before the cork tile is installed. Incidentally, cork tile can now be obtained with a vinyl surface for easier cleaning. But if you want this new combination, it will cost you more than regular cork tile.

Private Water Supply Safety Insured by Modern Equipment

Water is a basic ingredient of our American way of life. Yet in years past, water has been both man's servant and his enemy. Many diseases, man gradually discovered, were carried and contracted from the water he drank.

The dangers of unknowingly drinking polluted water can be made nonexistent today, says the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau. Modern water systems equipment has been perfected to the degree that families living beyond city water mains can be guaranteed an abundant supply of pure, safe water.

Responsible water systems dealers, who are familiar with the water supply in their areas, will recommend the type of equipment necessary to give peace of mind to the home owner by assuring that his water source will remain as safe as it was the day the well was finished.

If, when and how a well that's known to be safe may become contaminated is difficult to predict. The best protection, however, is to have equipment always on guard that will keep the water free of contaminants.

One type of purification equipment chlorinates and then de-chlorinates the water from the well, effectively killing possible harmful bacteria yet removing objectionable taste and odor before the water reaches the faucet. The operation of this equipment is very simple.

An additional safeguard is a "watch dog" mechanism that sounds a buzzer when the purification equipment needs attention. It also shuts off the water supply until additional chlorine is added to the system to assure safe water again.

The bureau recommends consulting a water systems dealer for his expert advice in treating water in a way that removes all possibility of contamination.

Now For the Checks and Balances

It is curious in the trial-and-error evolution of government in the United States how often its strong points are declared to be its weakness.

At the beginning, the Supreme Court was the special target of the determined men who thought they knew how the government should work.

After the Civil War, the presidency was the special target of the over-confident men in the House and Senate willing to ride roughshod over every obstacle to the power they sought.

In recent memory, Congress, itself, was crowded to the wall and downgraded and manhandled by New Dealers and Fair Dealers.

It is no accident that during the Eisenhower administration there has been less pulling and hauling among the branches of government than before; Dwight D. Eisenhower promised it would be that way when he was running for office in 1952.

He was reconciled to the checks and balances of government in the United States. It was not his conception of his duty as chief executive to belittle the function of either the Supreme Court or Congress. The three branches of government were co-equal in his opinion.

Ironically, this view has accounted in large part for criticism of Mr. Eisenhower as a mild executive. He has not tried to make himself look big by bickering with either Congress or the Supreme Court.

It remains to be seen how John F. Kenedy, his successor, will react when he assumes the responsibilities of heading up the executive department. There will be times when he will be at odds with the legislative department, times when he will be at odds with the judicial department and times when he will be in disagreement with both.

All the famous checks and balances Americans are told about when they are school children are still in full effect. It is one of the quirks of human nature, though, that restrictions on public power that seem wonderful in theory always turn out to be a stench and a stitch in actuality.

Men determined to assert their strength and leadership cannot be philosophical about vetoes, requirements for two-thirds and three-fourths majorities, judicial reasoning that cuts across the grain of executive necessity and legislative meanderings that try to conceal the fact the ship of state has gone off course and no one really knows where it is.

Mr. Kennedy, having had experience in the Senate, may be more tolerant of legislative checks and balances than his senator-predessor in office, Harry Truman, who had no patience with "obstructionism." But every man who accedes to the presidency must learn for himself how he will react when checks and balances impede his freedom of action and blunt the fine cutting edge of what he hopes will be his incisive leadership.

This is the crucible in which faith in constitutional government is tested.

Hardly Worth the Trouble

If Fidel Castro and his Cuban commies didn't have the United States embassy in Havana to point to, they would be as handicapped in their hate-America campaign as Chou En-lai and his Chinese commies are in Peiping.

Comrade Chou runs a hate-America campaign, too. But there are no Americans on hand to hate, because the United States never has recognized Communist China and therefore has no embassy in Peiping.

If it did have an embassy there, the Communist agitators could march mobs up and down in front of it. They could do what Castro has done in his latest hate-America move—demand withdrawal of all but a handful of the embassy staff.

It is unlikely they would use Castro's current trick of telling their mobs the United States was getting ready to invade China, because that would be too much for the Chinese to swallow. But they could demand that the hated Americans all go home and thereby keep the United States on the defensive.

This year, if all goes according to plan, there will be a mighty effort in the new Kennedy administration to bring about diplomatic recognition of Red China. It will be argued, as it has been for a long time, that only in this way can the United States keep in touch with what is going on in Peiping.

But if Castro and the Cuban commies are still playing tricks when the move is made to try to do business with another Communist setup in Communist China, the question is going to be whether recognition would be worth the trouble.

Communist governments love to set up embassies in Washington, so they can flood the United States with spies disguised in ledger-rules pants and cutaway coats. Besides, no one in Washington goes in for demonstrations, except for outsiders shipped in from New York to have their pictures taken by gullible news photographers, or perhaps merely mercenary ones.

As for setting up any more favorite targets for commie mobs in unfriendly capitals, most Americans right now would prefer to spend equivalent sums of money on their own "distressed areas."

In the Absence of Fidel Castro

There now is arising a speculation that always proves comforting to Americans when troubled by political gadflies abroad.

It is being said with various degrees of hopefulness that Fidel Castro, symbol of the Cuban revolution, is not long for his position of leadership; that he will be overthrown; that when he is gone things will be better. If Americans will be patient, in other words, Castro will disappear.

Only one thing is certain about political strong men. They are never long for leadership—never longer than the span of their lifetime. But it is not quite so certain they will be overthrown; that is only an odds-on bet.

It's neither certain nor an odds-on bet that things will be better when they are gone. Things can just as easily be worse, and in all probability will be about the same.

It is Cuba that has had the revolution, not Castro. It is Cuba that will remain in turmoil for a long time to come, regardless of what happens to the symbolic director of the turmoil. Cuba will never be the same.

The United States is proud of its historical part in the success of the revolution that liberated Cuba from Spain. But history did not pause long after the turn of the century. It plunged into the 20th century and the record of events that now have led to the estrangement of the United States from Cuba at the beginning of the century's seventh decade.

There has been little to be proud of in the decades during which the United States considered itself the guarantor of Cuban independence. Cubans as a whole did not come out of their experience believing the United States had done a good job for Cuba, or even for the United States.

Many would like to come here to live, to escape turmoil at home. But they know what Americans must try to understand. It isn't Fidel Castro whose presence or absence in Cuba will be decisive from now on. It is what course the Cuban revolution is going to take in the years ahead, when the United States may have a second chance to earn the respect of the Cuban people, after all of them have learned that the Soviet Union is not their friend.

Reds to Enter Local Elections

By RAY CROMLEY

Last Nov. 22, immediately after the presidential election, the American Communist party sent a secret letter to all Communist districts in the United States.

It asked for detailed technical information on how to go about running candidates in local city elections—the requirements for getting on the ballot, the dates when signatures must be collected for putting names on the ballot, whether the elections are partisan or non-partisan.

That information was requested in time for the national committee meeting of the Communist party U.S.A., in New York City in January, probably sometime around the 21st.

Communist districts without representatives at the national meeting are to have their information in by mail or courier.

THE LETTER CARRIES the typed "signature" of Phil Bart, National Organizational Secretary of the Communist party, U.S.A. Under Gus Hall, Bart is the Communist party's national executive assistant—the party's man for making certain that decisions are carried out.

Communist letters frequently carry a typed name. The letter is a first step in the Communist party U.S.A. election drive for 1961. Strategy and tactics will be decided at the New York meeting. Three proposals will be presented:

1. THAT THE COMMUNIST party U.S.A. put its major political drive for 1961 into infiltrating local school boards and the local governments which control school boards.

This proposal reportedly has wide popular support among Communist leaders. It fits in closely with Gus Hall's thesis that to gain in power, the party must make a drive on youth.

Hall has been cracking the whip on party workers, insisting that more youth groups be organized, getting Communists to approach their young friends and relatives, pushing Red speakers before college and university groups. A Red magazine, "New Horizons for Youth," was started in October. It is edited by Daniel Rubin, national youth director of the Communist party U.S.A.

A national conference of "progressive" youth is scheduled for Chicago, Dec. 31, 1960-Jan. 1, 1961, to establish a committee to organize a "national socialist-oriented" youth organization.

2. THAT THE COMMUNIST party U.S.A. openly run candidates publicly wearing the Communist label in some local elections.

This is more controversial. For some time there have been strong complaints among lower-level Communist leaders in some of the big cities—New York, Detroit, Cleveland, San Francisco, Los Angeles—that the Communist party U.S.A. must get out in the open and run its own men. This formerly was done on occasion in New York and on the West Coast, for example. So far as is known it hasn't been done recently.

The local Communist leaders in the forefront of this movement have reported to Communist national headquarters that if the Communist national leaders want them to grow, they must build around publicly-known figures. This means open public candidates.

Some high Red leaders, however, figure the time isn't ripe. They believe the Communists will do better if they continue to stay in the background. They favor another proposal:

3. THAT THE COMMUNIST party U.S.A. vigorously encourage "sympathetic" candidates to run for the local offices, whether these men are Communists or not. And that the party vigorously step up organization of local Communist units to make this drive effective in as many places as possible.

In some areas there will likely be encouragement for local Communists to infiltrate the Democratic and Republican local organizations, in an attempt to influence the nomination of "favorable" candidates. In some areas there is pressure for joint fronts.

This disagreement over the best method could end in tailoring different tactics for different areas. But there is wide-spread agreement on the thesis the Communist party U.S.A. and its units drive vigorously to win the nomination and election of favorable candidates in city and county governments—especially in the major industrial areas in the United States.

Message to Moscow

By DAVID LAWRENCE

There's Limit to What U. S. Will Endure

Irrespective of party politics, an American leader every now and then expresses in a few words the true feeling of the people of the United States on international policy. Just such an utterance from President Eisenhower with reference to the Cuban situation when he said:

"There is a limit to what the United States in self-respect can endure. That limit has now been reached."

This is a message that needs to be broadcast widely throughout the world and to be read carefully in Moscow.

For, if taken to heart, it can avert a world war. If disregarded, it can only mean that the Communists will continue to try American patience and force drastic action. Some day such a misguided attitude or misinterpretation can set off a chain of events that would bring a severance of diplomatic relations between the governments of the United States and the Soviet Union.

By withdrawing recognition from Cuba, the Washington government tells the world that the Havana regime is not discharging its international obligations and has confiscated foreign property without compensation. Instead of military intervention, a trade embargo has been imposed.

Financial and commercial interests, seeking profit, often balk at such measures. Even today some Canadian businessmen have apparently brought pressure on their government at Ottawa to continue trading with Cuba, although the United States has been striving to obtain a uniform policy among its allies to quarantine Cuba commercially and thus to avoid military intervention.

It is a source of great disappointment to many persons in the United States to see the conservative government in Ottawa in effect, playing ball with the Castro regime by permitting the export of non-strategic goods to Cuba.

While most of the press in Great Britain has approved the action of the United States in severing relations with the Cuban government, there are dissenting editorials which say it's a matter that should have been left to the Kennedy administration to decide or that it's likely to play into Castro's hands.

THE ONLY THING that will aid Castro and the Communist strategy is a failure of our allies to support the American government's restraint policies in dealing with its neighbors in this hemisphere.

Britain once did not see eye-to-eye with another president of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, when he made his great speech in 1937 calling for a quarantine of the Hitler - Mussolini bloc.

Earlier efforts to effectuate an oil embargo against Italy when Mussolini's forces invaded Ethiopia were fruitless because commercial interests in Western Europe blocked it.

The same mistake was made with respect to strategic materials and munitions by some Western governments which allowed such goods to be exported to Hitler up to a few months before the outbreak of the second World War in 1939.

Unless the Allies stick together, there is danger that the potential enemy will again take advantage of such dissension.

The United States is cooperating with its allies in making policies in Laos and the Congo, and it would seem that the Western nations would redouble their efforts to strengthen the hand of America in the present period of strained relations with Cuba.

The Kennedy administration is not likely to alter the policy initiated by President Eisenhower. By withdrawing recognition of the Castro government, the United States has served notice on all other governments of the world, particularly on those in this hemisphere, that it does not look with favor on any continued support of the Castro regime.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that Earl T. Smith, former United States ambassador to Cuba and an intimate friend of President-elect Kennedy, has just publicly characterized the break in diplomatic relations with Cuba as a constructive step and one that could "go a long way in vindicating the Monroe Doctrine."

The action is not merely the assertion by this country of its opposition to Communist meddling in Cuba. It is a reaffirmation of the principle that a government which fails to discharge its obligations under international law—protecting the lives and property of foreigners—is not entitled to diplomatic recognition.

It isn't just a matter of what territory a dictatorship controls but whether it honors international law. The Peiping regime, for instance, controls all of mainland China, just as Castro controls all of Cuba, but has been guilty of aggression in Korea.

The case is even stronger for a break in diplomatic relations with the Moscow government, which has not only violated international law repeatedly but has established by force a new colonialism among the nations of Eastern Europe.

Some day American patience may reach the limit in relations with the Communists. It's important for the Soviets to understand that there really is a limit—and that the American people will never favor "peace at any price."

Dash of Know-How

By TRUMAN TWILL

Don't look if you're squeamish about colonialism, but the news is out that Belgian "technicians" are going back to the Congo.

The Congolese made a discovery. They couldn't do anything without somebody on hand who knew what he was doing. In a country of 14 million people with less than 20 college graduates in the native population, someone must bear the burden.

Until the natives learn how to bear it, outsiders will have to be permitted to do what needs to be done. Some of the Belgians who were run off by the Congolese when they won liberation are being welcomed back in the hope they will make liberation mean something.

This is a challenge to American Negroes, who could very properly and most efficiently exert their influence to help members of their race in the Congo raise their educational status. But most of all it's a challenge to eager reformers always trying to make things work to suit themselves, instead of to suit the exigencies of the situation. In the early years of the Russian revolution, the idea was to throw out all the people who had been giving orders. The Russians were going to run things from the bottom up themselves—no more of that from-the-top-down routine. The boys on the bottom were going to vote on everything—no more orders.

The Russian economy went down the drain while they were voting. Nothing was done. Someone has to give orders even in a "workers' paradise." Even in heaven, you can bet there will be angels second-guessing Gabriel who wouldn't know how to smooth down their ruffled feathers without him.

Just sending boys and girls to college isn't going to lift the Congo into civilization, but it's the only way to begin. Some of them will learn enough about history, philosophy and culture to give purpose and depth to the technical information they will be expected to pick up in the classroom.

A handful of Congolese sooner or later will develop enough depth of civilization so it doesn't rub through the first time they come into contact with adversity. There's no reason for any of them to feel discouraged.

No one can be sure yet that the Germans, who have been at it a long time, are civilized, despite their technical know-how. Only a few years ago they were still taking delight in operating channel houses. The Chinese, who should be most cultured, having been at it longest, are giving no current evidence. The Japanese ran berserk so recently no one can be sure of them. Even the Italians were led back to the jungle by Mussolini.

Only in a few places could the Congolese be shown evidence that civilization does amount to something more than a thin veneer—the British, the Danes, the Swedes, Norwegians, Swiss and some North Americans. There are still savages among us North Americans.

What we have plenty of is technicians—people who can do tricks. And that's what the Congo needs to begin with. It may have to wait a long time for its Disraelis, Churchills and Lincolns. Even when it finally gets them, if it does, they may not come out of college classrooms, though they probably will because leaders who can't read, write and think in terms of accumulated knowledge are rare.

Anyway, Belgian technicians are going back to the Congo, to the conservation of all who wanted the Congo to be Africa's No. 1 do-it-yourself project. It takes know-how to run a government, a football team, or a pizza stand. And somehow the Congo has to get its faltering hands on know-how. Even Belgians.

Once Over

Bank checks are now coming in colors. It has been found women signed more of 12 billion checks than men during the year. This led to the belief that checks in gay colors would "stimulate check usage and convey a cheering image of any bank without sacrificing traditions."

Industrial designer responsible for the idea says use of colors has meant more business from makers of soaps, beer, cigarettes, etc.; that banks have been backward in not glamorizing checkbooks. It is up to men folks to rise and fight idea. They find wives are using plenty of checks in the plain hues. Thought of the Missus shooting the works because the checkbooks are pretty, is disturbing.

"It all depends on how far this idea goes," declared Mortimer Topblower. "There are women who are sensible and know when to stop in the matter of checks. But there are gals who are color crazy and go out of control under such influence. I have told my wife I won't stand for her coming up with the excuse. But the checkbook was so beautiful, dear, when I blast her for exceeding our bank balance."

"She will buy four packs of cigarettes instead of one because of colorful packaging."

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Readers: In a recent column "Moderate Mixer" criticized me sharply for my "relentless and boring" tirades against liquor. He told me to "cut out the harping."

According to "Moderate Mixer" a great many people handle liquor successfully, and that it's a pleasant part of daily living. I told "Moderate Mixer" bully for him if he was handling his liquor successfully. But more than five million Americans are not handling it with any success whatever — and alcoholism in this country is an increasingly serious socio-economic problem. I also told him that I intend to continue to harp on the subject until my typewriter falls apart.

Many readers wrote to say they would like to buy me a new typewriter if the old one collapses. I wish to thank all who did so, but my machine is in good condition and it should last for many years.

These are some of the reactions to "Moderate Mixer's" remarks:

San Francisco: The latest figures on alcoholism disclose that every day approximately 1,000 Americans cross the line that divides the social drinker from the addict. Almost $5 billion annually is spent in America on liquor. This could build a dozen $1 million schools every day of the year. If this isn't sickening, what is?—MR. EXPERIENCE.

Can't Stand Parents

Houston: I'd like to take an ax and smash every bottle of liquor in this house. Both my parents inherited money so nobody works. They sit and drink all day and at night it's more of the same.

My brother and I eat in the kitchen with the help because our parents fight like cats and dogs at the dinner table and we just can't take it. I'm saving your wonderful column on "Moderate Mixer" and I plan to show it to them — when they can see. — OLD AT 15.

Philadelphia: As personnel director in a large plant I can tell you that absenteeism which can be traced directly to hangovers is shocking. The cost to industry is millions annually. In addition to this, there is a direct correlation between industrial accidents and drinking.

Drinking Drivers

Springfield, Ill.: Tell those "social drinkers" that the 195 surveys of the National Safety Council revealed that one out of every three fatal automobile accidents involved a drinking driver. The figure jumped to more than 50 per cent on major holidays.

Escanaba, Mich.: Please print this one sentence — it may save a life. Drinking an alcoholic beverage after taking medication of any type can produce a dangerous loss of reflexes and an ordinarily safe driver can become a killer behind a wheel. My brother took one drink after visiting his dentist. The liquor plus the novocain did it.

WEATHER-PROOF — His parents bought Mike Glickerson, 6, this masklike cold weather cap. Mike's the envy of his first grade classmates in Kansas City, Mo.

Horrible Example

Seattle, Wash.: If a woman can't think of a better reason to leave the bottle alone she should consider what it does to her looks.

My mother has twin sisters. They are 35 years old. The alcoholic twin looks 20 years older than the twin who doesn't drink. The nondrinking aunt has had five children and has worked hard all her life.

The drinking aunt has had one child, has never had to work and she goes to the beauty shop twice a week.

This example in our own family has made a teetotaler out of me.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Newest of the 11 power plants of the Ohio Edison System is the W. H. Sammis Plant located in Stratton, Ohio, on the Ohio River. Estimated to cost $118,000,000 when completed in 1962, its four generating units will be capable of producing 692,000 kilowatts of electricity — sufficient to meet the electrical needs of homes in a city of 2,500,000 people.

POWER FOR YOUR FUTURE

Right now, America's investor-owned electric light and power companies are planning how to meet your power needs in 1970. They know that electricity continues to be increasingly important in the way we all work and live.

In 1960 Ohio Edison Company expended approximately $53,000,000 for additions and improvements to its electric facilities. Last July it placed in service a second 173,000-kilowatt generating unit at the new W. H. Sammis Plant. A third unit will go into operation in the summer of 1961 and a fourth in the summer of 1962. Last year the Company announced the purchase of 335 acres of land as a site for a future power plant at Warrenton on the Ohio River in Jefferson County.

A similar growth in electric power facilities has been taking place throughout Ohio. During 1960 Ohio's investor-owned electric utilities spent about $205,000,000 in the first year of a five-year billion-dollar expansion program.

What is happening in Ohio is typical of what is happening across the nation. The investor-owned electric light and power companies stand ready and able to meet in full the future power needs of all Americans.

As in the past, funds needed to build the power plants of the future will be provided by the millions of people who voluntarily invest their savings, directly or indirectly, in electric utility stocks and bonds. This is the foundation of America's world leadership in electric power supply.

trating on the needs of tomorrow.

"I hope that the delegates here will not allow themselves to be hustled of stamped into action not in keeping with the purpose of the conference."

An AMA spokesman Sunday backed the federal-state medical care plan for the aged passed by Congress last year and signed by President Eisenhower. Under it, needy persons over 65 are to get medical aid with costs shared by the federal and state governments.

Democrats have attacked it as inadequate.

Dr. J. Lafe Ludwig of Los Angeles, chairman of the AMA Council on Medical Services, told a group of doctor delegates: "It would be a national tragedy — unfair to old and young alike — if we shelved this law for the so-called Social Security approach which would mean medicine controlled and administered by the federal government."

Another physician delegate, Dr. Elkin Ravetz of Philadelphia, charged that the legislation backed by the AMA continues the concept of cut-rate charity medicine.

Dr. Benedict Duffy of Jersey City, N. J., backed Ravetz' statement, saying the present law would subject needy persons to a "frightful means test."

Duffy said that as a doctor "I will stand with you" but he said "Americans first and physicians second."

The president-elect of the AMA, Dr. Leonard W. Larson of Bismarck, N. D., avoided the controversy in remarks prepared for the opening day session.

The sprawling four-day conference is divided into 133 work groups for discussion of 86 topics on aging and to work out policy statements for future action.

FASHION IS BECOMING a "sticky" business, judging from the materials used in today's outfits. A woman could even bundle her evening gown into a hobo's handkerchief and carry it at the end of a stick. Today's amazing fabrics take any amount of punishment in transit and arrive as bandbox-fresh as if they had been packed in tissue paper. Even wool has a bounce-back resiliency that takes it from suitcase to dance floor without ironing. A boon to the one-suitcase traveler are the new, sheer woolen evening gowns that are equally appropriate in frigid north or balmy southland. They are chic, sleek and flattering.

Salem Quakers Whip Toledo Scott for 4th Straight Win

3 Bulldog Starters Foul Out; 44 Personals Called in Contest

Don Davidson, Bill Beery Share Scoring Honors for Salem With 14

By DICK BRAUTIGAM "They don't call 'em that close in Toledo."

That was the observation of Toledo Scott Coach Andy Kandik after his team dropped a 58-43 decision to the Salem Quakers here Saturday night.

Three of the Bulldog starters were forced to take early showers after picking up five personal fouls. Officials R. G. Bodnar of McDonald and Frank Susor of Youngstown blew the whistle 26 times on Scott and caught the Quakers fouling on 18 occasions. The Quakers lost one man on fouls, Ron Janovec, in the final minute of play.

Coach Kandik admitted that his club didn't play well enough to win, fouls or no fouls. The game was not one of most exciting seen here this season.

SALEM JUMPED OFF to a 7-0 lead and Scott never really got back in the game. By early in the fourth quarter, the Quakers had built up a 17-point lead, 49-32. At one point in the final period, the two teams ran up and down the floor for four minutes without either team managing to drop the ball through the hoop.

Salem Coach John Cabas said he believes his cagers were tight because Toledo's man-for-man defense was the first of that type the Quakers have run up against in seven games this season.

"Now that we have had some game experience against this type of a defense, I think we will do better the next time," the Quaker mentor remarked.

Coach Cabas said he was pleased with his own team's defense which limited Scott to just 37 shots and 15 goals the entire game. Salem's 6-5 center, Don Davidson, blocked several Toledo shots and guard John Borrelli and his replacement, Gary Jeffries, harassed the Toledo boys into making numerous mistakes.

DAVIDSON and sophomore Bill Beery shared scoring honors for Salem with 14 points apiece. Both of these cagers also rebounded well. Beery, a 6-0 1/2 forward nopped in six of his 14 points in the opening period. Davidson was blanked in the first quarter but caught fire in the second canto when he fired nine points through the hoop, including several drives and a couple of nice hooks.

Junior guard Bob Eskey, just as he has done in most of the other games this season, started out hotter than a firecracker, hitting on four of his first five shots from the field. The Quakers' best outside threat, Eskey, tallied six points in the opening quarter and added his final basket of the evening early in the second period. He took only four shots the entire second half.

Davidson was the only senior in Salem's starting lineup Saturday. The other starters were juniors Borrelli, Eskey and Ted Thorne and sophomore Beery. Janovec, 6-3 senior, came in for Thorne at the start of the second quarter. Jeffries, a 5-9 junior, played most of the second half and contributed seven points besides turning in a fine floor game. On his performances in recent games, Jeffries may be a tough man to keep out of the lineup.

TOLEDO SCOTT had two seniors, two juniors and a freshman in its starting lineup and the freshman outplayed them all. George Newton, a 5-10 freshman guard, pumped in seven fielders and a foul for 15 points to lead both teams in scoring.

Jim Jackson, 6-1 senior, who was the first of three Toledo players to foul out of the game, scored

Ditka Leads East To Bowl Victory

Pitt All-American Voted Top Lineman

HONOLULU (AP) —They voted Mike Ditka as the outstanding lineman in the East's 14-7 Hula Bowl victory over the West Sunday, but East Coach Joe Kuharich of Notre Dame rates the Pittsburgh all-American end much higher than that.

"Ditka proved that he is one of the great pro prospects of the current college seniors," Kuharich exclaimed after the upset before a crowd of 17,017.

"He can go either way. His punting was terrific and his defensive play was outstanding. I had to use him both ways when Mickey (Mangham of Louisiana State) was hurt early in the game."

Ditka caught an 11-yard touchdown pass from Georgia's Francis Tarkenton in the fourth quarter to provide the East's margin of victory. The West had led 7-6 going into the last period.

East Palestine Halts Leetonia's Streak

The East Palestine five captured their third tilt in seven outings and stopped a two-game losing streak. They are 2-1 in the league.

The Bears suffered their fourth loss of the season against three wins. Leetonia is 1-2 in loop play.

East Palestine was in command of the battle all the way as they held quarter scores of 20-14, 36-26 and 59-41.

Jim Franko meshed 17 points to feature for the Bears. He was followed by Bob Gullett and Jim Stelts with 14 and 12 tallies, respectively.

Western Reserve Loses Foul Contest

Chuck Robinson poured in 40 markers to lead Bristol past Western Reserve, 73-62 on the Bristol court.

A total of 92 fouls were called in the contest with 59 being converted. Bristol pumped in 41 of 57 and Western Reserve tallied 18 times from the charity stripe.

The win was the seventh out of 10 starts for Bristol while Western Reserve absorbed its sixth loss in seven tries.

Western Reserve jumped out to a 13-11 first period score but fell behind 31-19 at intermission. Bristol increased its lead to 55-41 at the three quarter pole and drilled 18 points in the final eight minutes to 21 for the Blue Devils to capture the win.

The Bristol JV's made it a clean sweep winning, 44-33.

Schoolboy Rowe Dies; Former Star Hurler

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Schoolboy Rowe, the big, tough major league pitching great of the 1930s, died Sunday night at his home here after suffering a heart attack.

Baseball records listed his age as 48, but his family said "schoolie," as the players used to call him, was really 51.

Rowe, whose real name was Lynnwood Thomas, was a scout for the Detroit Tigers. His major league career included nine seasons with Detroit, five with the Philadelphia Phillies, and one with Brooklyn.

Sherman Lollar of the Chicago White Sox led American League catchers in fielding last season. He made only three errors.

Lucas Sets Record

Ohio State Guns For 11th Tonight

By HAL PARIS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Evansville College, a small school power with big ideas, supplies the opposition tonight for Ohio State's brilliant Buckeyes.

While the situation is ripe for an upset, Evansville certainly doesn't figure to pull one off. The Purple Aces simply are out of their class in this one.

Coach Fred Taylor's unbeaten team probably will use Evansville as a tuneup tonight in the final nonconference game of the season. The Buckeyes roared to their 10th straight win Saturday by thumping Illinois 91-65 in their Big Ten opener.

Jerry Lucas set a St. John Arena scoring record for Ohio performers with 35 points, chalked up in less than 30 minutes of play. But Capt. Larry Siegfried, 6-4 senior from Shelby, came in for a share of the honors.

Siegfried threw the Illinois attack into a panic with his ball-hawking defensive tactics and chipped in with 18 points, including 12 free throws without a miss.

In other big games Saturday, Ohio University gave notice that it plans a strong defense of its Mid-American crown. The Bobcats nipped Bowling Green, 62-61, to grab a share of the lead with Toledo. Both teams are 3-0 in league warfare.

Billy Whaley sank a free throw with seven seconds left to clinch the Bobcats' win, their eighth against only two setbacks. Whaley led the Ohio attack with 23 points.

Dayton found DePaul too tough and stumbled, 75-64, despite Garry Roggenbuck's 21 points. It was the ninth straight win for the Blue Demons from Chicago.

Cincinnati had a waltz against Missouri Valley for North Texas State, romping 83-34. It was the Bearcats' first league success in three starts.

Marshall grabbed its first MAC victory, nipping Kent State 73-72 on Lou Mott's free throw in the final 22 seconds. And Wittenberg kept its perfect Ohio Conference mark intact with a 43-38 squeaker over Capital. It was the 41st straight home court win for the Tigers and their 21st consecutive triumph in the loop.

Ohio Wesleyan stayed close to Wittenberg in second place by beating Denison, 72-55. And Muskingum, last Ohio school to win a game, finally broke through in a 77-64 decision over Hiram.

Ohio State hits the road again Saturday in a conference go at Northwestern. Other headlines this week start early when Ohio University gets a chance to tag

West Branch Nips Canfield, 57-55, to Remain Unbeaten

Warriors Erupt After Slow Start

Dick Loudon Hoops 23 Points, Grabs 12 Rebounds to Lead Damascus Five

By BOB JULIAN

If ever a basketball team played possum, the undefeated West Branch Warriors did Saturday night before they erupted in the second period and turned what looked to be certain defeat into a 57-55 victory over a tall Canfield Cardinal quintet on the Warrior hardwoods with over 850 persons packed in like sardines watching the action.

Leading the Joe Tucker-coached Warriors to their sixth straight win without a loss was 6-1 senior Dick Loudon with 23 markers and 12 important rebounds. Another senior, 5-10 Tom Baxter, added 14 points to the winning cause with some fancy one-handed jump shots from the corner.

The game was marked by excessive fouling by both teams. A total of 42 personal fouls were called in the tilt with West Branch being guilty on 22 occasions and Canfield being caught 20 times. Three players fouled out, two for West Branch and one for Canfield.

BOTH AGGREGATIONS were fee cold in the field goal making department as the Warriors attempted 73 shots and meshed only 21 for a low 28.7 per cent. Canfield had a slightly "better" percentage from the floor hitting on 17 of 59 for 28.8 per cent.

In the foul shooting department the Warriors canned 50 per cent, drilling in 15 of 30 while the Cardinals now 4-4 on the season capitalized on 21 of 32 for a percentage of 65.6.

West Branch fell behind right from the opening jump as the Cardinals moved out to a 10-2 margin before the Warriors knew what hit them. With the tall Canfield five controlling the boards and using a man-to-man defense very effectively the Warriors could not get inside the key to score and were forced to shoot from out behind the foul circle and from the corners in the first canto.

The West Branch basket must have had a lid on it in the first period as the Warriors attempted 16 field goal shots but made good on only two in the entire period. Canfield dominated the first quarter of play but was equally as impressive as West Branch for they canned four of 15 tries from the floor in posting a 13-6 first quarter margin.

DICK LOUDON opened the second eight minutes with two quick buckets for the Warriors as things started to click for West Branch. Canfield, startled by Loudon's four points, got rattled and what was looking like a rout in the first period was settling down to an even ballgame with 6:50 remaining in the second canto.

Both teams battled on even terms for the next three minutes but the fouling began to take its toll. At the mid-point of the second period West Branch's big boys, 6-2 Tim Sanders with four personals and 6-2 Fred Brunner with three fouls had to take it easy. Coach Tucker removed Sanders with 3:51 left and installed 5-11 junior Dan Dennis into the lineup.

With Sanders out of the lineup and the pressure of losing him for the second half removed, the Warriors became a different ball club. With the rebounding of Brunner and Loudon and the scoring of Baxter and Loudon the Warriors tied up the contest at 21-21 with :52 left to intermission. Baxter tied the game with a foul shot and a two pointer by "Dandy" Dick Loudon put the Warriors into its first lead of the game, 23-21, with :43 remaining and they never fell behind again.

With 1:42 to go in the half the Cardinals led, 21-19 but a staunch West Branch defense shut them out for the remaining time as the Warriors scored nine markers to race to a 27-21 halftime margin. Baxter tallied four of the nine points and Loudon connected for five.

CANFIELD STARTED the third period with two men in trouble via fouls. Bill Alcott had picked up four personals in the first half, and 6-4 Jim Briggs was credited with three.

The third period was marked by both teams trading baskets but West Branch lost Sanders on fouls with :17 left in the period. Sanders hauled in nine rebounds for the Warriors before leaving and scored one point.

Canfield outscored West Branch, 14-11 in the stanza of whittle the margin to three points, 38-35, going into the final period. The final period was fast and furious as both teams battled with everything they had as they racked up 39 points, 19 for the Warriors and 20 for Canfield for the highest total scored in any quarter.

Canfield was dealt a blow right at the outset of the period when Alcott left the game via the foul route. Alcott had scored 13 points and grabbed nine rebounds for the Cardinals.

Big 6-4 Jim Briggs took charge for the Cardinals and whipped in three points to pull Canfield within one point of West Branch, 39-38 with 6:55 remaining. That was the closest the visitors got as "Dandy Dick" tipped in a rebound to send the Warriors surging ahead again.

WEST BRANCH OPENED its widest margin, 53-42, with 2:62 left in the game on a basket by Dennis. The latter part of the contest was marked by careless shooting and ball handling by both teams. Brunner fouled out for the Warriors with 2:18 remaining.

With Briggs and 6-5 Bob Dove rebounding and scoring, the Canfield five staged a last minute rally as they outscored the Warriors, 11-4 in the final two minutes.

Canfield called time out with :29 remaining and the score, 57-55, to set up strategy for one last shot by set-shot artist, 5-6 Rich Baehler. Canfield took the ball out of bounce and set-up Baehler who fired away but just missed as the ball hit behind the rim. Chuck Wilson grabbed the rebound and the game was over.

The rangy Canfield team found itself being outscored by the smaller Warriors, 40-38. Loudon grabbed 12 for West Branch and was followed by Sanders with nine. Brunner had eight and Wilson five. Pacing the Cardinal rebounders were Dove with 14, Alcott with nine and Briggs with eight.

Dove led the Canfield scoring with 14 tallies.

Both the Cardinals and West Branch are members of the Turnpike Conference but the first game that league members play does not count if the teams meet twice during the year. Canfield and West Branch will tangle again on Jan. 20 in Canfield. The game will count in the league standings and will probably determine the loop champion.

The Warrior JV's went down to their first loss, 48-41, after five straight wins.

Records Fall in Senior Bowl Tilt

South Wins on Pass In Final 7 Seconds

By HOYT HARWELL

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A flock of records fell in Saturday's 12th annual Senior Bowl football game, but the frenzied windup in which the South won 33-28 is what the fans will be talking about for awhile.

Here's what happened: The South was leading 26-20 when Dick Norman of Stanford hit Fred Arbanas of Michigan State on a 29-yard pass play to give the North the ball at the South 29. On the next play, with three minutes left in the game, Norman tossed to Don Smith of Missouri at the 15 and the half-back made it the rest of the way on a sparkling run to tie the score at 26-26.

Bobby Lauder of Auburn broke through the line and blocked the extra point by Stanford's Skip Face.

The South took the following kickoff but couldn't get moving. Bobby Walden of Georgia then left the South without maneuvering room when his 64-yard punt rolled dead inside the Yankee one.

Three line plays brought it only to the six and Face punted to the North 42 with 19 seconds left.

On the next play quarterback Norman Snead of Wake Forest handed off to Ed Dyas of Auburn, then took a lateral from Dyas and lofted a long pass into the end zone.

Georgia's Fred Brown made a dazzling catch although apparently well covered. The clock showed seven seconds left and the South led 32-26. Dyas, holder of the NCAA season's conversion record of 13, then kicked his third extra point of the day.

Brown, the South leading rusher with 44 yards in 12 carries, scored his team's first and last touchdowns. He had circled right end in the first quarter for 10 yards and a score.

Winless Sebring Five Frightens Clippers

Winless Sebring put a scare into the highly touted Columbiana Clippers Saturday night before falling by only three points, 51-48, in a Tri-County League game played on the Trojan floor.

The Clippers copped their sixth victory in seven outings and are now 3-0 in league competition. Sebring has failed to win in seven starts and is 0-3 in loop play.

Columbiana, paced by Gary Perkins and Rich Harrold with 13 markers apiece, "aced" to a 24-9 first period score but a 14 point outburst by the Trojans in the second stanza narrowed the clipper lead to 30-23 at intermission.

Sebring ripped in 25 markers in the second half to 21 for Columbiana and might have pulled the biggest upset of the year if they had been able to contain the powerful Rich Berryman-coached Clippers in the high scoring initial period.

Dale Mingledorf pumped in 16 points to lead Sebring and Ray Dorr followed up with 13 for the Trojans.

The Columbiana JV's edged the Sebring reserves, 43-41.

Beaver jumped out to a 16-13 first period margin and increased its lead to 34-22 at intermission.

In the third stanza the Salsineville five peppered the hoop for 19 points while the Beavers managed to cage 11 as the Indians whittled the Beaver lead to, 45-41 going into the final period.

Allows More Time for Study

Hoople System May Do Away With Basketball

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE (News Science Editor)

Egad, friends, I must apologize for the typographical errors in the paper last week which gave you a bum steer on three of the 25 area high school basketball games we predicted for Friday and Saturday.

Although I did predict 22 of the 25 games correctly (including a few scores which were so close that a few suspicious folks are clamoring for a senate investigation of the Hoople system) this, of course, was far below my 100 per cent average I carried into last weekend's action.

We understand that a few school superintendents are putting pressure on coaches to drop the remaining games on their schedules and just use Hoople's predictions to determine how they would have done if they had actually played. This, of course, would allow the athletes to devote more time to their studies.

Now don't you Salem fans worry about this happening to your team.

At least until enough money is taken in at the games to finish paving the street which leads up to the school parking lot. Har-rumph!

Now, to get down to the business at hand. I have only four games for Tuesday to put through the Hoople system and a chance to improve my 38-3 record. Here's what will happen:

Beaver Local 64, Chester 53;

The Old Boy Himself

Chester might be a fine player but it takes more than one man to make a team.

Newell 75, Salsineville 55: The Indians came within 12 points of Beaver Local last Saturday. They are ready for a letdown. Looks like a slaughter.

Youngstown North 59, McDonald 52: Now here's a Youngstown team stepping outside "rugged" city series competition to take on an intersectional basketball power. Har-rumph!

Wellsville 71, Steubenville Central 43: If this game were being played on Central's band box floor the result might be a different story. It's not so it looks like another big night for Bob Kiggins.

Celtics Draw Blood, But Hawks Win Game

By The Associated Press

The Hawks won the ball game, the Celtics drew the blood, the fans sat on their hands and Auerbach kept face with all.

That's the story of Sunday's nationally televised National Basketball Association game between the St. Louis Hawks, Western Division leaders, and the Boston Celtics, Eastern Division rulers.

The Hawks came out on top by a whopping 133-104 margin. The defeat was one of the worst ever suffered by the Celtics.

With 2:37 left in the first half, someone—still unidentified—waloped Hawk ace Bob Pettit. He suffered a 1½-inch gash alongside his left eye and had to retire for repairs.

The last time the Celtics showed up in St. Louis, the spectators came equipped with plenty of eggs. This time they confined themselves to cheering the locals on.

Louisville Continues Lisbon's Tailspin

Louisville rolled to its first Tri-County League victory Saturday night as the winless Lisbon Blue Devils fell the victim, 53-36, on the Lisbon court.

The Leopards are now 1-2 in league play and 2-5 for the season. The Blue Devils are 0-3 in the Tri-County and 0-7 overall.

Louisville, in breaking a five game losing streak, had no trouble with the Lisbon five as they raced to quarter leads of 12-7, 20-9 and 36-23.

The Blue Devils had their worst quarter when they canned only two points in the second eight minutes. In the third stanza they drilled in 14 and pumped in 13 in the final period. If Lisbon had been as effective in the first half the score would have been 54-52 in favor of Lisbon.

Roger McCaughin and Craig Pannier paced the Lisbon team with eight and seven markers, respectively.

Darrell Sommers tallied 15 points to feature for the Leopards. Louisville took the reserve tilt, 53-30.

Harney Leads L.A. Golf Event

Ahead by 1 Stroke In $45,000 Tourney

By BOB MYERS

Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The $45,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament reached the show-down stage today with Paul Harney leading the procession.

Harney was the first to admit that his lead was a risky one — just one stroke in front as the final 18 holes got under way.

The immediate target was the $7,500 first money for the winner. "Sure, I wish I had a few more strokes' leeway," said the 31-year-old professional from Worcester, Mass.

Harney took over the lead Saturday with his second straight 69 for 136, and clung tenaciously to the lead with a par 71 Sunday. Harney's nearest challengers were Leonel Hebert, a former National PGA champion and brother of the 1960 PGA champion, Jay; Bob Rosburg, no stranger to the tournament trials, and Bob Goalby, who closed out the 1960 season with a win in the Coral Gables, Fla., Open.

Two strokes behind the leader were ex-U.S. Open champion Billy Casper Jr., and two relative dark-horses, Bob Gajda, a club pro from Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and 25-year-old Tommy Jacobs, pro for the Bermuda Dunes Country Club in the Palm Springs area.

Crammed in brackets within five strokes of Harney were other dangerous threats. Included were Art Wall Jr., Ken Venturi and Ted Kroll, in the 211 group. Gary Player, Eric Monti, Jim Ferree and Tom Aaron were grouped at 210, and Eric Brown of Engand, Dutch Harrison and others at 212.

Shoff Hoops 19 Points In Greenford Victory

Greenford's Bobcats rolled over the North Lima Zippers, 54-33, Saturday night on the Zipper hardwoods.

Clyde Shoff flipped in 19 markers to pace the Bobcats to their third triumph in seven starts. Greenford is 0-1 in Inter-County play.

Shoff went into the fray with 92 points and a 15.3 average for second place among the league scorers.

Ward Manchester drilled in 10 tallies to feature for the Zippers. Greenford took the reserve encounter, 38-17.

Dodgers' Willie Davis Should Win 1961 Rookie Award Hands Down

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Unless scouting reports are worthless, Willie (The Wisp) Davis 20-year-old newcomer to the Los Angeles Dodgers, should win the National League's 1961 rookie awards hands down.

The fleet center fielder, one of 15 freshmen on the Dodger roster, is regarded a virtual certainty to earn a big league berth. He has plenty of credentials. Last year with Spokane, he led the Pacific Coast League in six departments and won the most valuable player award.

In addition to winning the batting title with a .346 mark, Davis led in stolen bases (30), hits (216), runs (126), total bases (347) and set a league record with 26 triples. And he did it all despite a pulled leg muscle which handicapped him the first month of the season, when his average dipped well below .300.

Davis' spectacular performance overshadowed Charley Smith, 23, who is expected to give Jim Gilliam a tussle for the Dodger third base job. Smith, a 160-pound shortstop at Spokane, batted .322, out-homered Davis 22 to 12, and drove in more runs, 106 to 75. He lacks polish on defense, but makes up for it with a powerful arm.

Another bright prospect is catcher Doug Camilli, son of the Dodgers' slugging first baseman two decades ago. The strapping youngster batted .21 at Atlanta last year and impressed Manager Walter Alston in a brief whirl with the Dodgers last September. In 24 times at bat, he rapped six hits.

including two doubles and a home run, and drove in three runs. He handled himself well behind the plate, too.

Doug hit 26 doubles, 4 triples and 13 home runs in the Southern Association, driving in 78 runs in 131 games.

Two of the finest pitchers up from the minors will be in the Dodgers' spring training camp at Vero Beach, Fla. They are right-hander Jim Golden and southpaw Peter Richert. Golden won 20, lost nine and posted a 2.32 earned run average with St. Paul in the American Association. He pitched the most innings, 237, and the most complete games, 14. Richert, still on the Atlanta roster, broke the 40-year-old Southern Association record by striking out 251 batters in 255 innings. He won 19, lost 9, pitched 6 shutouts and turned in a 2.76 ERA.

Third baseman Bob Aspromonte, who had a brief stay with the Dodgers last year, is back. This time his bid is supported by a .329 batting average built at St. Paul. Other infielders include first baseman Tim Harkness, who batted .293 with 28 home runs and 11 runs batted in at Atlanta, and Len Corbo, who divided the 1960 season between Macon and Green Bay; and shortstops Dick Tracewski, a .288 hitter at Atlanta, and Ralph Plumlee, a first year player who batted .254 with Odessa. Also up for inspection will be Ramon Conde, a third baseman who batted .325 at Spokane, and Allen Norris, an outfielder who hit .245 with the same team.

Lions Cop Runnerup Bowl

Paul Brown Says Injuries Hurt Club

CLEVELAND (AP)—Coach Paul Brown says the Cleveland Browns' 17-16 loss to the Detroit Lions in the National Football League's runnerup bowl game at Miami Saturday "may take some of the heat off us for next season."

"Everybody seemed to have us scheduled for the title," the coach said Sunday. "Now the Lions are the team to beat. People can forget about us."

Brown said he felt injuries were the major factor in his team's defeat. "We seemed to fall like flies out there," he remarked.

Bobby Mitchell suffered a knee injury early in the game, but managed to outrun the Lions for an 9-yard touchdown in the last quarter. The speedy halfback was unable to do much inside running, however.

"Except for that injury I might have showed the fan a few things because I felt real good at the kickoff," Mitchell said. "I really was anxious to go in this one. After a twisted knee I didn't have the power inside."

Rich Kreitling suffered a shoulder separation when he was tackled in the end zone after taking a nine-yard pass from Milt Plum in the second quarter for the Browns' first touchdown.

Leg trouble robbed Leon Clarke and Ray Renfro of their speed and they were almost useless as pass receivers in the postseason game.

Center John Morrow took the blame for the missed extra point, that cost the Browns a tie. "It was a bad snap and the ball bounced along the ground," he said.

Bobby Franklin's delay in getting the ball into position for the place kick permitted Dick (Night Train) Lane to get in the way of Sam Baker's boot.

Plum Loses 4 Passes
Plum, who had only five passes intercepted during the regular season, had four stolen Saturday.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said in Miami Sunday that the runnerup game will be continued despite the disappointing attendance of 34,981 spectators at the Saturday afternoon contest.

"This game will make it easier to draw more people next year," the commissioner said. "We definitely plan to continue it."

Ernie E. Seiler, executive vice president of the Orange Bowl Committee, which brought the game to Miami, said if the NFL will agree to play the game on a Saturday night or Sunday afternoon next year "I think we could guarantee a crowd of 55,000."

Republicans Again In Control

Smoother Operation of Ohio Assembly Predicted by GOP

By DUANE E. CROFT
Salem News Staff Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio — As the Republican-controlled 104th Ohio General Assembly got under way here last week, one occasionally heard a prediction that, after two years of Democratic leadership, things will be getting back to normal in the legislative halls.

Purveyors of such sentiments, all from the GOP lineup, had in mind a shorter session over-all, stricter adherence to time schedules, smoother conduct of committees and floor meetings.

They no doubt considered it a sufficient sign of normalcy just to have the driving reins back in Republican hands. That scarcely can be argued, since the Democrats have had the upper hand in only two of the last six sessions, and those a decade apart.

No Such Thing as 'Normal'

But the fact is there is no such thing as a "normal" legislative session. Each assembly is peculiar unto itself, with its special circumstances and problems.

What, for instance, is a "short" session? The shortest in recent history was the one in 1957, which completed its work on May 29 and adjourned sine die in June.

It was characterized by harmonious relations between Republican Gov. C. William O'Neill and the GOP legislative leaders, who were backed up by substantial majorities in both houses. It also was marked by a lack of highly controversial subjects, including general agreement on fiscal and tax policies.

This year a Democrat is in the governor's office and there is a narrower margin of difference between the Republican majorities and the Democratic minorities in the two chambers.

Proposals May Draw Fire

While both sides agree that the tax increases of 1959 should preclude any more this year, Gov. Michael V. DiSalle already has promised to submit or offer again some other proposals certain to draw fire from Republicans.

The governor has promised to present his executive budget earlier than usual, but the GOP leaders have made it clear they plan to take a long, careful look at it. Speaker Roger Cloud said after the election he did not believe the House Finance Committee could complete its study on the general appropriations bill inside of four months. He added that the fate of certain other programs will not be decided until after that.

On that basis, the 1961 session could run longer than the 1959 one despite the best intentions for a "short" session.

Urges Promptness

As for strict adherence to time schedules, Senate Majority Leader C. Stanley Mechem announced on opening day that "when we say we are going to start at 2 o'clock, that's when we'll start. If you're not here then, we'll start without you."

Nevertheless, immediately prior to that he had acknowledged that the two-vote margin of his majority in the Senate could cause him some trouble and expressed a hope for cooperation over partisanship. It doesn't take much of a disagreement to make a scheduled starting time an anachronism.

Speaker Cloud made no such promise of promptness in his formal opening address, which turned out to be a good thing because the second day's session was about half an hour late getting started.

While everybody on the scene favors a smoothly run session with due respect to the best parliamentary practice, some observers have little patience with discussions of how long the session should be.

It's More Complex

They point out that the Ohio Legislature meets only every two years and that its business gets more complex all the time. Its sessions should be as long as necessary to do a good job for the people of Ohio, they say, and no longer or shorter.

But nobody can predict at this point how long that is. The most interesting part of the first week's organizational activity was the announcement of committee assignments. They were the first big task of the leaders of both parties and the lists were undergoing revision right up to the moment before announcement.

In toto, they represent a blend of political advantage, utilization of expert knowledge and the members' personal preferences.

In the first category, the maneuvering for Rules Committee spots in the Senate was notable.

Originally, Sen. Mechem planned to give the Democrats only two of nine seats despite their argument that the 20-18 lineup entitled them to more.

He reportedly also insisted that Sen. Arthur Blake, D-Martins Ferry, be the man to serve with Minority Leader Frank King of Toledo, who is automatically a member. Sen. Mechem's argument was that, with six terms to his credit, Sen. Blake should have the seat on seniority.

Wary of Belmont Man

But Sen. King was wary of the Belmont countenance because he bolted party ranks a number of times during the last session. So the Democratic leader succeeded in getting a place on Rules for Sen. Charles Carney, D-Youngstown, a consistent King supporter.

Sen. Carney thus winds up in an enviable position for a minority member, serving on Finance, Rules and the "blue ribbon" State Government Committee, which will be given special assignments, some of them involving matters of top policy.

Sen. Edmund Sargus, D-St. Clairsville, a freshman with a two-year term, also got desirable committee posts — on Commerce and Labor and Judiciary. Beaten by Sen. Blake in the 1958 primary for the four-year term, he is reportedly girding to challenge the veteran again two years hence. That might have some bearing on his committee appointments.

Another freshman who came up with significant posts is Rep. J. Warren Bettis, R. Columbiana, who was placed on the Elections and Federal Relations and the Judiciary committees. The former will undoubtedly get the bid to redistrict Ohio to provide for the new congressional seat coming up in 1963.

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

That loud burst of silence from Jimmy Hoffa's halls of marble means only that he has been too busy to sound off — and one of the matters which has occupied him is the launching of a new labor federation led by himself and that friend of the Soviet Union, Harry Bridges.

Just when the merger of Hoffa's teamsters and Bridges' Pacific longshoremen will be announced, is known to only four of five leaders of both unions. All have a sense of the dramatic. All have been meeting quite secretly to decide the moment when they believe the announcement is most apt to startle John Kennedy, the AFL-CIO, American industry, the Congress and the courts.

These off-the-record meetings began in Washington two years ago. They were put on a regular schedule throughout '60. During the year just ended, the Hoffa-Bridges strategy was to begin working together publicly, area by area.

BIT BY BIT the coalition was uncovered. Joint teamster-longshoremen committees were organized. They went into action. They negotiated jointly. They ran joint "victory" celebrations.

There was a joint Hawaiian committee; a joint warehouse workers group; a joint coastwise operation. Last June the new found comrades-in-arms ran a mass victory rally on the West Coast celebrating the signing of a warehousemen's contract.

Hoffa's voice was piped in by long distance telephone. This is one of his favorite techniques. It proves he can be in two places at once. This was just the beginning, said the voice, like something out of Orwell.

Some in the longshoremen's union have been called "Communist," he said. "Teamsters have been called gangsters," he added, "but I'd rather belong to either union than to one of those so-called clean unions headed by tired old men who have never been on a picket line in their lives."

Harry Bridges rose to the emotional moment inspired by the voice. "We have," he said, "set up here a pretty unbeatable combination. . . ."

"I am proud to know Hoffa and to work with him and we are going to pool our efforts to get a better deal out of life for our members."

FOR SIX MONTHS, the merger talks were held quietly. There were apparently to be more joint public appearances.

A mass meeting was arranged for the night of Dec. 12 in Oakland, Calif. Again, Hoffa came in only by amplified telephone voice. This time, however, he was also represented by his second-in-command, Harold Gibbons.

There was much talk of joint action. Gibbons called for many more such rallies. They were to fight alongside of each other during 1961.

Perhaps the warmest note of all was sounded, gently, by Cy Stults, president of Local 70, longshoremen's union.

"I have dreamt," he said, "of a night like this for a long time, but I never thought it would happen. The longshoremen, warehousemen and teamsters under one roof, with international officers talking from the same platform. We used to fight like hell. Now we're holding hands. I hope the brotherly love keeps up for a long time to come."

BRIDGES was not exactly full of brotherly love for all. He suggested a national work stoppage to back up the unions' programs. He talked vaguely of friends overseas.

Mysteriously, Bridges said the laws of this country end at our borders, "and if we get into trouble here and need more strength, we have a few pals overseas."

When the time came for Hoffa's voice to flood the auditorium, he said: "I ask you to look forward to realize that in the coming 1961, we're in for the fight of our life. Whether it be longshoremen, teamsters or the smallest independent union in this country, we're in for a hard long fight."

Insiders believe that soon Hoffa and Bridges will call on all independent unions to merge into a third labor federation to make that "fight."

Ohio Assembly Opens Second Week of Sessions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's lawmakers return to Columbus today for the second week of sessions of the 104th General Assembly with dim prospects of any major action. In fact, it may be another short work week with legislators heading for home again Wednesday.

Senators return in midafternoon today to consider a bulky bill to correct a number of minor errors in the Ohio Code which was revised in 1953. Senate floor action late today hinges on whether any objections are raised against the bill. Any objections would be based on claims some substantive changes have been made in the attempt to cure minor defects. Senate leaders say they are in no big hurry.

The measure sailed through the House last Tuesday without opposition. It is an emergency measure which would be effective with the signature of the governor.

Passage of the corrective bill holds the key to the start of bill introduction in both houses. Because of the hundreds of minor changes the bill will make in the Ohio Code, lawmakers want the corrective measure out of the way before the bill deluge opens.

Both houses have a number of organization odds and ends to wind up, also, including the adoption of operating rules for the session.

Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle has about 50 bills ready for submission to the Republican-controlled legislature. Most of them are measures requested by department heads to simplify state operations.

All officers were retained at a reorganization meeting of the Southern Local Board of Education Tuesday. They are: J. B. Ferguson, president; Albert Eisenbarth, vice president; committee chairman, Robert Cole; finance, Robert Skinner, building and grounds; Martin Adams, transportation; and Eisenbarth, public relations.
